

Graylock Digital — Well-Driller Landing Page

Single-Page Sales-Flow Revision for Replit

Public route: /websites-for-well-drillers

Primary conversion: Request a Free Custom Homepage Demo

Page purpose: This one page must work in two ways at the same time. A well driller who receives the link after speaking with Kim should immediately understand the conversation, the offer, and the next step. Kim should also be able to loosely move through the same section sequence while she speaks—without the page ever looking like a public sales script.

There is no second page, no internal route, no call-guide dashboard, and no separate rep tool in this scope.

The page should follow the same logical order as Kim’ s strongest conversation:

Why we called → Is the current website doing its job? → What a better website can do → Free custom demo → Market offer → Simple process → Proof → Pricing / risk removal → Next step.

This sequence mirrors Tim’ s actual field-tested approach without showing prospects his exact prompts or coaching notes. The first thing being sold is always the free, custom, no-obligation demo—not the recurring plan and not a generic website package. 1

1. Core Strategy: What Changes From the Current Build

The current page has strong well-driller-specific content, including local search visibility, service and estimate requests, direct inbox notifications, the seven-to-ten-business-day core build target, a pricing bridge, the 30-day guarantee, and the two-year refresh benefit. Keep those strengths.

The page must change its story order and CTA hierarchy. It currently educates first and sells the complete website too early. The revised version should start by explaining why Graylock contacted the company, let the owner consider whether the site is doing the job they need it to do, and offer a custom homepage demo before moving into price, payment, build-fee waiver, or comparison content.

Keep	Change	Remove / avoid

Well-driller-specific language; Rosenlund device proof; local-search, request-routing, and mobile-credibility benefits; the guarantee and refresh benefit; the clear five-step build concept.

Lead with the free demo; use a conversation-flow anchor strip; introduce the market offer only after the demo has value; make every public CTA demo-first; rewrite the process around “conversation → custom demo → decision → build.”

A separate internal page; visible sales scripts; objection drawers; rep notes; “Check My Market Availability” as the primary CTA; fake urgency; vague agency jargon; claims of guaranteed rankings or lead volume.

2. Page-Level Design Rules

Use the existing Graylock dark / charcoal / topo visual system, white display typography, and orange accent. Continue to use the approved `hero_bg_rosenlund_drilling.png` visual in the hero. It proves that Graylock can make a well-drilling company look established on desktop and mobile.

The visual style must remain premium and rugged—not a generic contractor template, emergency-plumber ad, or hard-sell lead-generation funnel. Use real well-drilling work, water-system context, service-area cues, and the device proof only where they clarify the story. Do not add excessive orange glow, countdown elements, stock handshake photos, fake dashboard metrics, or visual clutter.

The page must be easy to scan from a phone after a short call. Keep heading hierarchy clear, body paragraphs short, CTA buttons large enough to tap, and all important copy readable without an expanded accordion. Every page section should answer one question Kim expects to hear in a call.

3. Conversation-Flow Anchor Strip

Add a compact sticky section navigator directly beneath the global header and above the hero. This is a public-facing page navigator—not a sales script. Its job is to help a prospect scan the story and let Kim move smoothly to the next relevant section if she is on the page during a call.

Exact labels

Anchor label	Section ID	Kim’ s natural transition
WHY WE CALLED	<code>#why-graylock-called</code>	“This is why I thought it was worth reaching out.”

WHAT A BETTER SITE DOES	#what-a-better-site-does	“Here is what we are actually trying to help with.”
YOUR FREE DEMO	#free-custom-demo	“The next step is simply showing you something real.”
HOW IT WORKS	#how-it-works	“This is the simple path from here.”
PRICING + GUARANTEE	#pricing-guarantee	“If you are wondering about cost and risk, it is laid out here.”

Behavior and layout

On desktop, center the anchors in a single slim row. On mobile, make the row horizontally scrollable with visible edge fade and a 44px minimum tap area. The active section may be highlighted with an orange underline, but the navigation should not become a large sticky bar that consumes mobile viewport space.

Do not label the anchors “Call Steps,” “Sales Flow,” or “Kim’s Guide.” They must feel useful and natural to the prospect.

4. Section 1 — Hero: Why We Reached Out + Free Demo

Purpose

The hero must connect directly to the call Kim just made. It has one job: explain that Graylock contacted the company because it sees an opportunity to help, then offer the free custom demo as the immediate, no-pressure next step.

Asset and layout

Use `hero_bg_rosenlund_drilling.png` as the desktop hero background. Keep the text on the open left side and preserve the laptop / phone proof on the right. Do not add another device mockup, card, overlay, or logo on top of the image.

On mobile, do not crop the right-side device proof with a cover background. Render the copy in a black/topo text panel first, then show the approved device asset directly below as a contained, full-width image.

FOR WELL DRILLERS WE BELIEVE WE CAN HELP

H1

WE DIDN’ T REACH OUT TO SELL YOU
A GENERIC WEBSITE.

Set “A GENERIC WEBSITE.” in Graylock orange.

Supporting copy

We reached out because we see an opportunity for your business to look stronger online, be easier to find locally, and turn more of the right visitors into real service and estimate requests. Before you decide anything, we build a custom homepage demo around your company—free and with no obligation.

Primary CTA

REQUEST MY FREE CUSTOM DEMO

Destination

Plain Text

/get-started?industry=well-drilling&intent=free_demo

Preserve all existing `market` , `rep` , `source` , and UTM parameters when present.

Secondary CTA

SEE HOW THE DEMO WORKS

Scroll destination: `#free-custom-demo`

Hero proof line

No upfront cost to see the direction. No obligation after the demo. You decide after you see something built for your business.

CTA rule

Do not use “Check My Market Availability” as the hero CTA. It can remain as contextual microcopy later in the market-offer section, but the first step Kim wants the owner to take is a demo—not a scarcity check.

5. Section 2 — Why Graylock Called

Add the ID `why-graylock-called` .

Purpose

This section gives the owner a respectful answer to the question, “Why did you call me?” It allows Kim to reference the page after she makes a specific observation, without publicly insulting the owner’s current website.

WHY WE CALLED

H2

WE LOOK FOR A REAL BUSINESS AND A REAL DIGITAL GAP.

Body copy

We do not call every well driller we can find. We look for companies with a real local reputation, meaningful work, and a website that is not yet helping the business the way it should. If we reached out, we saw a reason to believe a better website could make a difference.

Large closing question

Is your website doing everything you want it to do for the business?

Design

Use a centered content block with one vertical orange accent line on desktop and a short horizontal orange line above the heading on mobile. Do not include a CTA. This should feel like a genuine question and a bridge into the next section, not a pitch.

6. Section 3 — Let Them Recognize the Problem

Purpose

Tim’s approach works because the owner names the problem. The page should use the same respectful logic: invite the owner to recognize a gap rather than tell them their website is bad.

H2

IF YOU COULD CHANGE ONE THING ABOUT YOUR WEBSITE, WHAT WOULD IT BE?

Body copy

Most well drillers do not need a marketing lecture. They need a website that reflects the business they have built and makes it easy for the right customer to reach them.

Four reflection cards

Use four clean, selectable cards. Selecting a card should reveal the short explanation directly below the card row. Do not require an email, form submission, or modal to use this interaction.

Card label	Revealed explanation
I WANT MORE OF THE RIGHT JOBS	A clearer website can place your priority services, service areas, and ideal project types in front of people who are already looking.
MY SITE DOESN' T REFLECT OUR WORK	Your online presence should show the scale, experience, equipment, service quality, and reputation customers are trying to evaluate before they call.
WE ARE HARD TO FIND OR HARD TO CONTACT	Clear local service pages, visible phone actions, and simple request paths make it easier for the right prospect to reach the office or crew.
I DON' T KNOW WHAT MY SITE IS DOING	We can show you a clearer direction with a custom homepage demo before you decide whether a rebuild is worth pursuing.

After a card is selected, show one small CTA below the revealed explanation:

SHOW ME A CUSTOM DEMO

Send the selected card label into the form as `stated_goal` only when the visitor clicks through. Never call this a formal website audit or diagnosis.

Kim' s use

Kim can loosely use this section after the owner has described a pain. She does not need to read the choices aloud. It is simply a visual reinforcement of the kinds of outcomes the owner may already be describing.

7. Section 4 — What a Better Website Does

Add the ID `what-a-better-site-does` .

WHAT A BETTER WEBSITE IS BUILT TO DO

H2

GET FOUND. EARN THE CALL. MAKE THE NEXT STEP EASY.

Body copy

When someone needs drilling, pump work, or water-system help, your website should make three things clear: you serve their area, you do the work they need, and they know exactly how to reach you.

Feature blocks

Keep the existing feature component and well-driller device proof. Render the blocks in the order below.

Feature	Exact copy
FOUND WHEN LOCAL CUSTOMERS SEARCH	We structure the site around the drilling, pump, water-system, and service-area searches that matter in your market—so the right people can find the right services at the right time.
CREDIBILITY THAT HOLDS UP AGAINST COMPETITORS	Real work, clear capabilities, service areas, reviews, and trust signals are placed where prospects decide whether to call you or keep looking.
BUILT TO TURN PROBLEMS INTO REQUESTS	Clear service paths, estimate-request forms, phone CTAs, and contact prompts guide visitors toward the next action instead of leaving them to figure it out.

LEADS DELIVERED WHERE YOU NEED THEM

Service and estimate requests are sent directly to your designated email inbox so your team can see new opportunities and respond quickly.

Accuracy guardrail

Do not claim a guaranteed Google rank, specific lead volume, or revenue result. The page may say Graylock builds a strong local-search foundation and makes it easier for the right customer to find and contact the business.

8. Section 5 — Free Custom Demo + Market Offer

Add the ID `free-custom-demo` .

Purpose

This is the key offer section. It must explain the value of the free custom demo first, then explain the build-fee waiver as a truthful local-market benefit. This is the section Kim can move to when she reveals Graylock’s offer after learning about the owner’s situation.

YOUR FREE CUSTOM DEMO

H2

SEE SOMETHING BUILT AROUND YOUR BUSINESS BEFORE YOU DECIDE ANYTHING.

Body copy

Tell us what work you want more of, where you serve, and what your current website is not doing. We use that information to create a custom homepage direction for your company—not a generic contractor template. The demo is completely free, and there is no obligation to move forward after you see it.

Three-column demo value block

Pillar	Copy
--------	------

BUILT AROUND YOUR COMPANY	The direction is shaped by your services, service area, ideal jobs, and the way you want the business to be perceived.
FREE TO REVIEW	You do not pay to see the demo, and reviewing it does not create a commitment to a monthly plan or build agreement.
WALKED THROUGH WITH A FOUNDER	A Graylock founder reviews the direction with you, answers the deeper questions, and helps you decide whether it is a fit.

Market-offer sub-block

Place this after the demo-value block. Visually separate it with a thin orange rule and a compact “Market Offer” label, but do not make it louder than the free-demo message.

Subheading

SELECTED LOCAL-MARKET OFFER

Copy

In selected markets, Graylock is choosing one well-drilling company we believe we can genuinely help and waiving the one-time website build fee for that selected business. The demo comes first for everyone; market availability is explained clearly before anyone is asked to move forward.

Small availability note

Availability depends on campaign capacity, local fit, and whether a selection has already been made. It does not guarantee permanent exclusivity.

CTA

REQUEST MY FREE CUSTOM DEMO

Offer language rules

Do not say “free website,” “guaranteed selection,” “only one spot left,” or use a countdown. Tim’s playbook is explicit that local-market language must be truthful and never presented as fake urgency. ¹

9. Section 6 — How the Demo Becomes the Website

Add the ID `how-it-works` .

Purpose

This sequence should let Kim naturally say, “This is what happens from here,” while reassuring the prospect that the process is easy and that the custom demo is a real step—not an empty sales promise.

HOW IT WORKS

H2

THE FIRST STEP IS SIMPLE. THE DEMO MAKES IT REAL.

Body copy

You keep running the crew. We learn what matters to the business, build a clear direction, and handle the website work if you decide the new site is worth moving forward with.

Five connected steps

Step	Title	Exact copy
01	TELL US WHAT YOU WANT THE SITE TO DO	In a short conversation, we learn your service area, priority work, current website frustrations, and what a real win would look like for the business.
02	WE BUILD YOUR FREE CUSTOM DEMO	We turn that conversation into a homepage direction built around your company, not a generic theme or a slideshow of vague ideas.
03	YOU REVIEW IT WITH A FOUNDER	You meet with a founder to see the direction, ask direct questions, and decide whether it feels right for your business.
04	WE BUILD THE FULL LEAD SYSTEM	If you choose to move forward, we build service pages, local-search foundations, request paths, mobile experience, and trust proof.

05	WE LAUNCH, SUPPORT, AND REFRESH IT	We launch the finished site, route requests to your chosen inbox, maintain it, and provide the current two-year refresh benefit while you are subscribed.

Timing line

The demo begins with a short 10–15 minute conversation. Most core full-site builds are ready in 7–10 business days once the direction, materials, and required access are ready.

Do not say that the demo itself is created live in 10–15 minutes. The short time frame applies to the initial discovery conversation, consistent with Tim’s sales method. ¹

10. Section 7 — Proof: Show the Standard

THE KIND OF STANDARD WE BUILD TOWARD

H2

A WELL-DRILLING WEBSITE SHOULD LOOK AS CAPABLE AS THE COMPANY BEHIND IT.

Body copy

A better website is not about making the business look flashy. It is about helping a customer understand who they are calling, what work you do, where you work, and why they should trust you before they ever pick up the phone.

Use the Rosenlund Drilling preview only if Graylock has confirmed permission to show it. If it is a demo concept rather than an approved live client project, label it accurately as:

WELL-DRILLER WEBSITE DEMO CONCEPT

Do not use a non-well-drilling testimonial. Leave the real testimonial slot unpublished until Graylock has a real, attributable, approved well-driller testimonial.

CTA

Destination: /featured-projects

11. Section 8 — Pricing + Guarantee

Add the ID pricing-guarantee .

Purpose

This section addresses the question that often comes after a prospect understands the demo. It should remove risk without putting a full price list in front of someone who has not seen why the demo is valuable.

Exact copy

PRICING + GUARANTEE

H2

A BETTER WEBSITE SHOULD NOT FEEL LIKE A BLIND BET.

Body copy

The first thing you pay for is not the demo. You see the custom direction before you decide whether the full site is worth moving forward with. If you are selected for the active local-market offer, the one-time build fee is waived. After launch, your business is on a clear monthly plan with ongoing support.

Keep the live current pricing component and only display the current published from $199/month pricing if it matches the live /pricing page on launch day.

Required trust line

Covered by Graylock's current 30-day money-back guarantee. Your website also receives the current two-year refresh benefit while subscribed.

Link 30-day money-back guarantee and two-year refresh benefit to the official live terms or relevant pricing detail. Do not expand the terms beyond the approved public wording.

12. Section 9 — FAQ

Keep the existing FAQ component but update it to support the call and demo flow. Use accessible accordion buttons with semantic labels, visible focus states, keyboard support, and no FAQ schema unless the exact question/answer text is visible on the page.

Question	Answer
What exactly is the free demo?	It is a custom homepage direction built around your company, services, service area, and what you told us matters most. It is not a generic template preview, and there is no cost or obligation to review it.
What happens after I request a demo?	We set up a short conversation to learn what you want the site to accomplish. Then a Graylock founder walks you through the custom direction and answers the questions that matter to your business.
Do I have to decide on the call?	No. The demo exists so you can see something real before deciding whether Graylock is the right fit.
Why did you contact my company?	We focus on established companies with a real local reputation and a website or online presence we believe can be made more useful. We do not send the same offer to every business.
Will the site help us get found locally?	We build around clear services, service areas, local-search fundamentals, and content structure so search engines and customers can better understand what you do and where you work. No agency can ethically guarantee a specific ranking.
How do service and estimate requests get to us?	We configure clear phone actions and request forms so the inquiry details are sent directly to the email inbox your business designates.
What if I only want to answer a few questions by email?	That is fine. You can reply with the services you want more of, the areas you serve, and what you want the website to do better. We can use those details to prepare a more relevant demo conversation.

What does the local-market offer mean?	In selected markets, Graylock may waive the one-time website build fee for one well-drilling business it selects to work with. Availability depends on campaign capacity, local fit, and whether a selection has already been made.

Internal notification subject

New Well-Driller Custom Demo Request — [Business Name] — [Primary Service Area]

Do not promise an exact response time unless Graylock has an operational service-level commitment it can meet.

15. Follow-Up Link and Message Use

Kim can send the same single page after a call. No special internal mode or second route is required.

Use a standardized public campaign URL when helpful:

Plain Text

<https://graylockdigital.com/websites-for-well-drillers?market=Elko%2C%20NV&rep=>

The public page should not visibly show Kim's name or her call prompts by default. The parameter is for lead attribution and form context. The page itself must stand on its own for anyone who opens it later.

Short text follow-up template:

Hi [First Name] — Kim with Graylock here. Here's the quick overview I mentioned for [Business]: [link]. It shows how we approach well-driller websites and the free custom demo we discussed. No pressure at all—just wanted to give you something concrete to look at.

Email subject:

Email body:

Hi [First Name], Thanks for taking a minute to talk today. I reached out because [specific honest observation] and I think there may be an opportunity for your website to do a better job of [owner-stated goal or desired service]. Here is the short overview I mentioned: [link] The first step is a custom homepage demo built around your business at no cost and with no obligation, so you can see something real before deciding whether it is worth moving forward. Thanks,
Kim

16. Implementation Rules and QA

Requirement	Replit instruction
One page only	Do not build <code>/sales/*</code> , <code>mode=call</code> , internal dashboards, or a secondary companion page.
No sales-script UI	Do not expose objection prompts, rep notes, sales stages, or call checklists in the public page. Kim should use the section order and headings loosely, not a visible script.
CTA hierarchy	Use <code>Request My Free Custom Demo</code> as every primary CTA. Keep market availability as supporting context only.
Offer claims	Do not promise Google rankings, specific lead volume, revenue, guaranteed selection, or permanent exclusivity.
Responsive behavior	The section anchor strip scrolls horizontally on mobile. Hero copy appears above the device asset on mobile. Cards stack without sideways page scroll.
Accessibility	Maintain semantic headings, visible focus, WCAG AA contrast, button labels, form labels, accessible accordion behavior, and reduced-motion support.
SEO	Retain <code>/websites-for-well-drillers</code> canonical, title, public FAQ schema only if FAQ is visibly rendered, and well-driller <code>Service</code> / <code>WebPage</code> schema.
Analytics	Track page view, demo CTA click, reflection-card selection, offer view, process view, form view, and successful form submit.
Test sequence	Test the public page on desktop and mobile before changing other campaign pages. Verify hero, CTA labels, parameter persistence, form notifications, pricing links, and FAQ behavior.

17. Replit Build Instruction — Paste This Into the Build Task

Revise the existing `/websites-for-well-drillers` page using the attached single-page scope. This is the only page to build. Do not create an internal call guide, a `/sales` route, a call-companion mode, or a second page of any kind. The public page needs to follow Kim's real call flow without visibly becoming a sales script: why Graylock called → is the current site doing its job → what a better website does → free custom demo → market offer → how the demo becomes a finished website → proof → pricing / guarantee → FAQ → final demo request. Rebuild or restore the hero using `hero_bg_rosenlund_drilling.png`, the exact hero copy in this scope, visible device proof, and a primary `Request My Free Custom Demo` CTA. Replace `Check My Market Availability` as the page's primary action everywhere. Keep market availability and the waived build-fee offer truthful and later in the page as risk removal—not the opening pitch. Add the compact public conversation-flow anchor strip, the self-assessment card section, the free-demo / market-offer section, the revised five-step process, the updated FAQ, and the revised form configuration. Preserve campaign parameters into `/get-started?industry=well-drilling&intent=free_demo`, but do not show internal sales data or a rep script to the prospect.

Final direction: This is one public page that helps Kim sell naturally because the page is ordered like her conversation. It opens with why Graylock called, lets the owner recognize the gap, makes the free demo tangible, explains the real market offer without gimmicks, and closes on the exact next step Kim is trying to book: a free custom demo.
